A must-read treasure, December 24, 2012 Henrietta Lala herbalwiz (St. Martinville, LA) This review is from: Blackbird: A Boy Meets The Devil For the First Time (Kindle Edition) Ive been reading about 70 years and Blackbird is one of those rare nuggets of pure gold in a whole mountain of clay . It plays out like the blues, full of riffs and bass and gravel that spin themselves into a mirror of soul not ashamed to get down and dirty and come up dragging us into a light we refused to open our eyes to before. Dont let the stomp and shuffle and guffaws fool you into thinking its not about you, you aint gonna get off that easy. I was in Gadsden Alabama for about three months in 1958, and hes not telling any lies. It was my first experience with deep southern segregationist views. A great morality tale told by a masterful and powerful writer about a very unique character. About this short story: How and Why One Writer Gave up on General Motors. Dont own a Chevy Cobalt? Be Glad. Be Very Glad. And... Cover your tracks! Bonus: At the end of this short story are sample chapters from the novel... Boogie: A Life With The Devil.
