

Like a powerful magnet, the grave of Rebbe Nachman in Uman attracts visitors from across the globe. On Rosh HaShanah – the day that Rebbe Nachman said was most propitious for being close to him – the crowds swell to 25,000 and more. They come from all parts of the world and from all backgrounds – religious, not religious, even converts – but they share one goal: a search for meaning and inspiration. Pull up a chair and join us. And perhaps next year, you'll tell us your story, too.
