

Modes China (De Rigueur Book 5)

For the fifth volume of De Rigueur - our biggest yet - we take an in-depth look at fashion design and clothing production in China today. Erik Bernhardsson spent two and half years working, travelling and meeting people in China: through his essays and interviews, he offers a unique look into the realities of clothes-making in China today. The volume includes interviews with Zhang Da, designer of Shang Xia, a Chinese heritage label established under the umbrella of Frances Hermes, up and coming designer Dooling Jiang of Digest Design, artist Alessandro Rolandi of Social Sensibilities R&D, photographer Ren Hang and students of the Central Academy of Fine Arts of Beijing. Modes China also features a report on Shenzhen-based label ffiXXed and its original mode of production, and a visual essay on Chinas rising clothing industry, including a surreal visit to new city Eastern Milan. We hope this volume will contribute to the ongoing discussion on China, the practices of the clothing industry in general, and sustainability in particular, and that it will offer a few ideas to better understand China -and its clothing industry- in a larger context. About the Author Erik Bernhardsson is a recent graduate now engaged in Transdisciplinary Design. He has been a student at the Central Academy of Fine Arts in Beijing, The Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm, Fudan University in Shanghai, and the School of International Liberal Studies at Waseda University in Tokyo. Modes China is a look at clothes-making in China, and its related disciplines, and through this explores modes of work, modes of creating and modes of being. About De Rigueur De Rigueur is a digital publication on finding inspiration through people and clothes.
